Relationships and reporting come first.

When your organization receives a new client, you identify their unique needs, assess their language and vocational skills, and find out how to best use your organization to deliver programs and services.

 The full integration of the client can take years, and throughout the process, programs can change and staff can turnover.

Fdata's solution for immigrant services organization is to track this relationship, providing a full range of data management, scheduling, reporting, and privacy controls that can be used throughout your organization.

Our software, including menus, forms, and fields can be modified to meet your unique needs. Data can be accessed securely from any computer or through a web portal.

Customized reports can be generated through the software in Microsoft Office formats and made identical to standardized forms and templates that your organization already uses or which your funders require.

At the heart of our solution is the idea that since an organization's processes, records, and relationships are unique, your software should also be unique.

Keeping data safe and private.

Fdata software is designed to comply with government regulations regarding data security.

It is built on an Oracle database that can handle millions of records and thousands of users while providing unmatched data integrity and allowing disaster recovery solutions to be easily implemented.

Every aspect of the software is permission based, ensuring confidential information on client records remains secure and changes are logged to prevent accidental deletion and ensure accuracy.

Effective scheduling and resource allocation.

Built in scheduling and metrics allow organizations and management to effectively allocate staff and volunteer resources, schedule appointments and follow ups, and provide instantaneous results on demand to funders to show resource utilization and anticipate future organizational needs.

Our business experts will design workflow solutions, so that each client engagement can be tracked.

Quick learning through training and familiarity.

To assist users, our programmers will customized screens and work flows to match how your staff already enter or track data.

Fdata creates training materials and administration guides for each installation.

One of the advantages to our solution is that include step-by-step instructional videos tailored for your organization.
